During the first year at Chaparral you learn all of the important things: Which way to turn for your next class, how long it takes to go from one end of the building to the other, and which Seniors to avoid. You get to know the teachers also; you learn that Freshmen teachers are more like Junior High teachers than you thought, that is all but Mr. Romans who has a very convincing way of saying "Run." And your interest in the opposite sex is developed by watching James Williams flirt.

Betty:
 We've had a good time these 4 years.
 Hope you have a really fine life after cbs. Remember & me always keep control. Happy wedding. You love us & we love you. Bring the Mrs.

The R is a... voyage. You learn even more about the place, the people... of the radio, dozens of cans sitting in the hall, the few... Mr. K... shooting his laser around the halls, you get to study Shakespeare again, a name you still hate. You see guys grouped in the halls rating girls on a scale of 1 to 10. You get to read Tale Of Two Cities and you... biology so you can order your... class rings.

 that way. It's been fun having you

 you are a very sweet

With the most sweetest of hearts and the most beautiful of minds, you will find that the most beautiful of things are the most common.

When the journey is half over you begin some of the finer things in the universe: A locker on the east side, prom, Mrs. Puls waking you up in the library to say, "You were sleeping." You find yourself fascinated by little things. The gray footprints that come out of Mr. Gerber's room, go down the hall a short distance and then mysteriously disappear. Coaches standing in group photography and journalism students wandering the halls each morning, the band flying to lunch to find Mr. High guarding the lunchline, watching for food fights and waiting for Tod Hostetler or Darin Jacobs to pop another milk carton. You see Mr. Brown wander aimlessly around the Commons, laughing at his own jokes and making conversation with anyone who will listen.

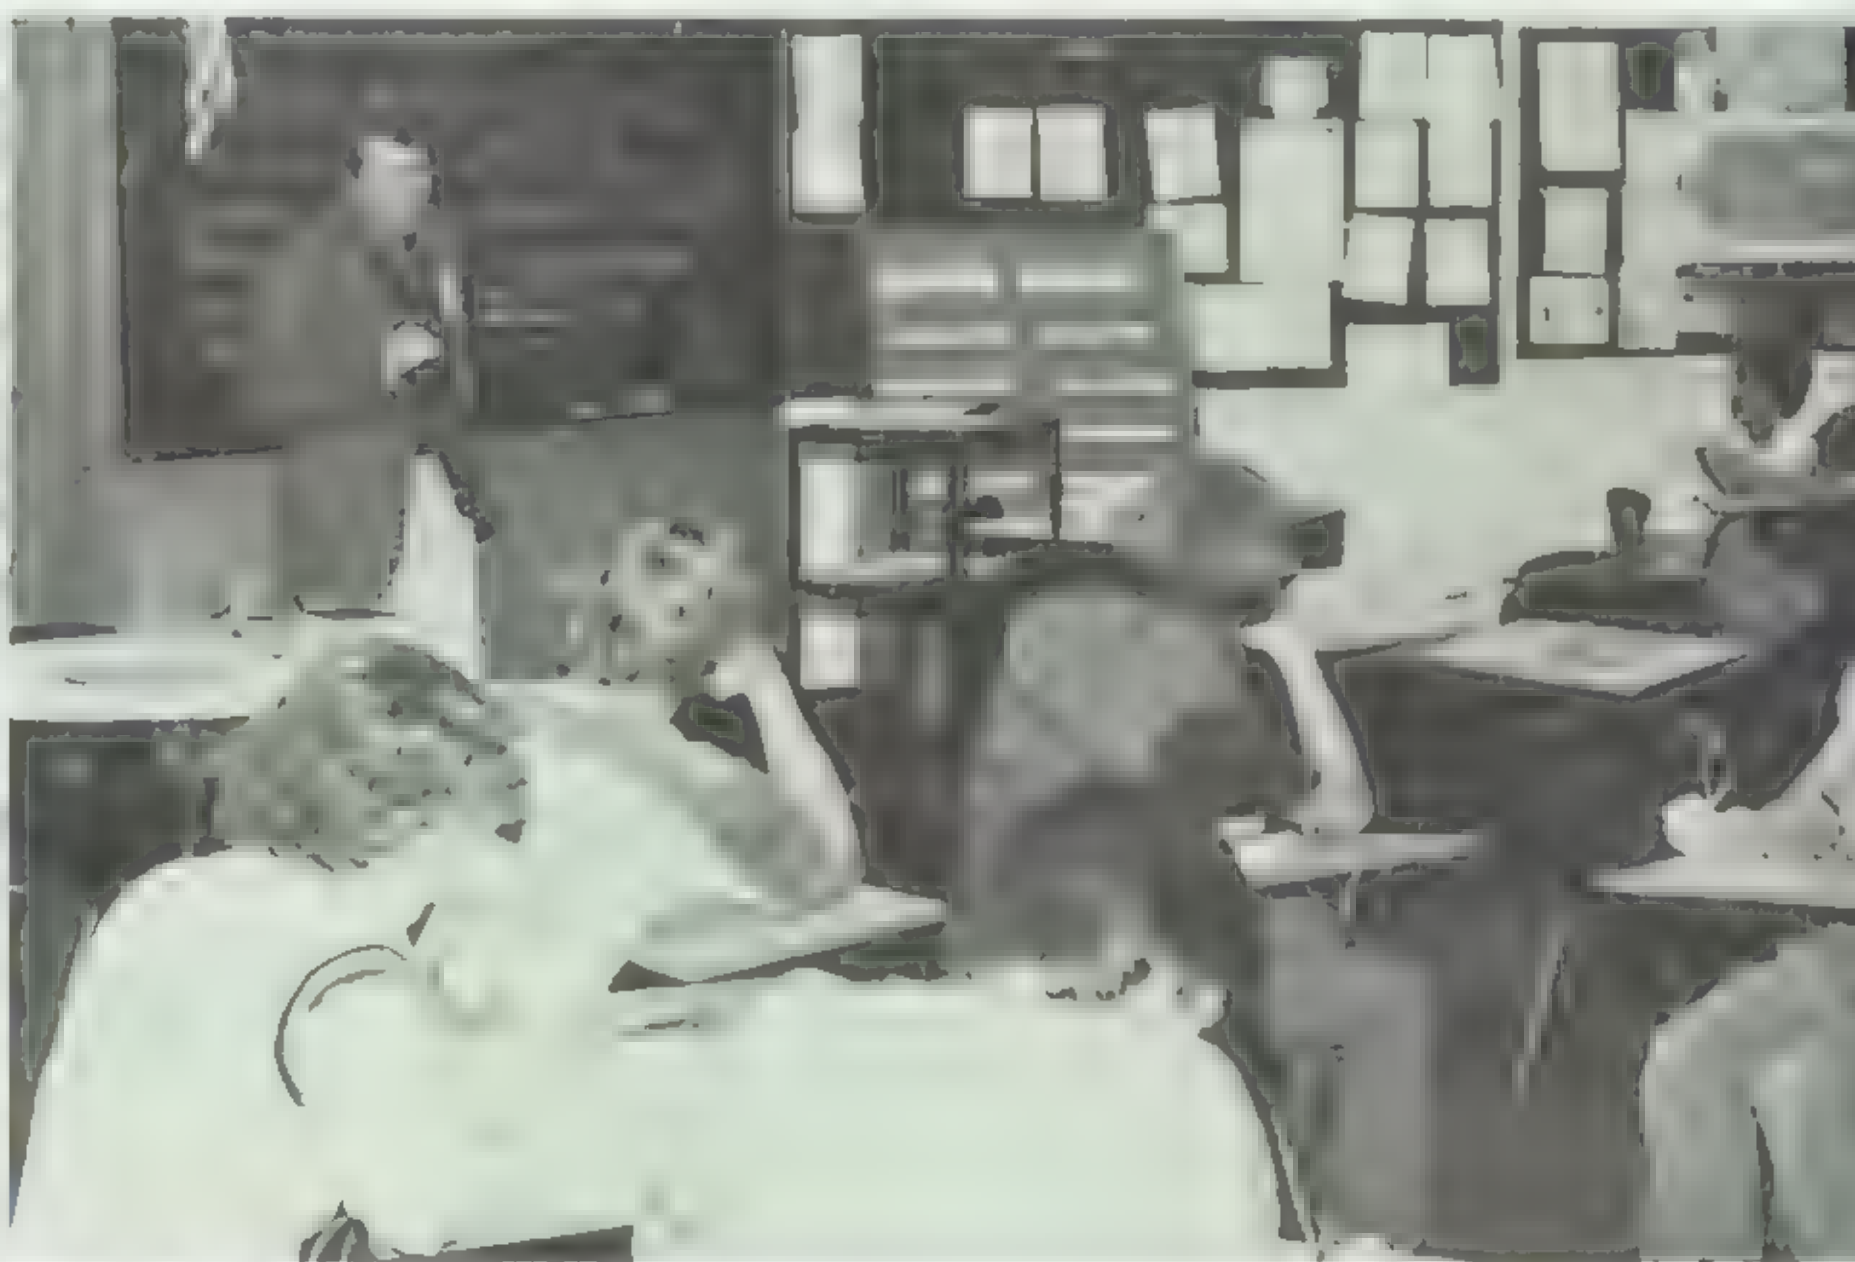

The last year of your voyage, you're now a Senior. The force is with you. You set out to hassle Freshmen, pass government and avoid listening to Bruce Oliver. Suddenly you realize you don't hate Shakespeare as much as you did and there is a bonus this year: Senior portraits in the yearbook. Then it comes down to A.C.T. Tests, college brochures, Mr. Baker scholarship applications and the growing sense you may miss this place. Time for a new flight plan.

That's Our Gals!

Last night I came out to the girls game. They have the best defense for a girl's team that I have ever seen. Cindy Livenood in my opinion, is the best guard in the state. She has probably 9 or 10 steals a game. Linda Dornick is also very good at defense with great quickness to help out. When they are in the game together it's incredible how many steals and forced errors they get. Cindy is also a fine shooter and is a leader on the team. The team as a whole is short but most tall girls are uncoordinated. If you can get a small quick team that will hustle and play defense like our girls, you can go a long way. They have determination and lots of confidence which are two of the biggest assets in basketball.

Our girls have the ability and the determination to win state and I wasn't surprised when they did.

Getting ready for marching festival at W.S.U. last October took everyone's concentration and cooperation. We took a little out of each football game performance and added a few more songs to make the routine we would use for contest. Mr. Hodges was more particular about this performance than for the football game performances because of the judges. He has a battery operated megaphone that he talks through to tell us to run back and do it again. Some days all we did was run back.

When the day finally came to perform before the judges, we were nervous. If we messed up Mr. Hodges would be very disappointed and Chaparral has such a good history of doing well, the pressure was really on. When we got on the track before marching onto the field, I was shaky and when I started to play, my hands would hardly move. But the long hard hours were worth it. We received the best rating in class 4A.

Mr. Brown has this habit of being exactly where you can't see him, but he can see you. One time in the lunchroom Kent Olds, Jon Nelson, Mark Harbin and I looked over the entire lunchroom and there wasn't a teacher or administrator in sight. But as soon as Mark threw his beans, Mr. Brown was standing right by our table. We had just overlooked him. He's one sneaky dude. He gets along with the students real well but everyone realizes he is the boss, and they respect him.

Where Do They All Come from.

At times it is lonely when you don't have a ton of friends around you and you listen to other people plan their Friday nights together. Even walking down the hall can be lonely sometimes, not having anyone to say hello to and being too timid to say hello. People don't realize why you walk around the hall not saying anything, and think you are stuck up. If only they knew.

To be a loner does have its good points, if you can handle the loneliness. You never have to worry about any secrets getting around about you because no one knows any. You don't get in the middle of people's problems or friend's arguments. You may have some people you talk to sometimes, but they don't get too close to you, and you don't get too close to them. Friendships like that are easier to keep. But Friday nights can be tough.

Sometimes it is really upsetting trying to get the school spirit going. Sometimes at a pep rally when you are yelling your lungs out, you can see people with blank faces, a few talking to friends, lovers doing whatever, and students that look like they're getting ready to run the 50-yard dash out the door. They would leave if it weren't for the teachers, and then a few leave before the school song is over in spite of the teachers. Sometimes you want to give up, go sit in the crowd and let someone else do the job. The cheerleaders don't work like athletes, but sometimes they have twice as hard a job.

WEEKEND REPORT

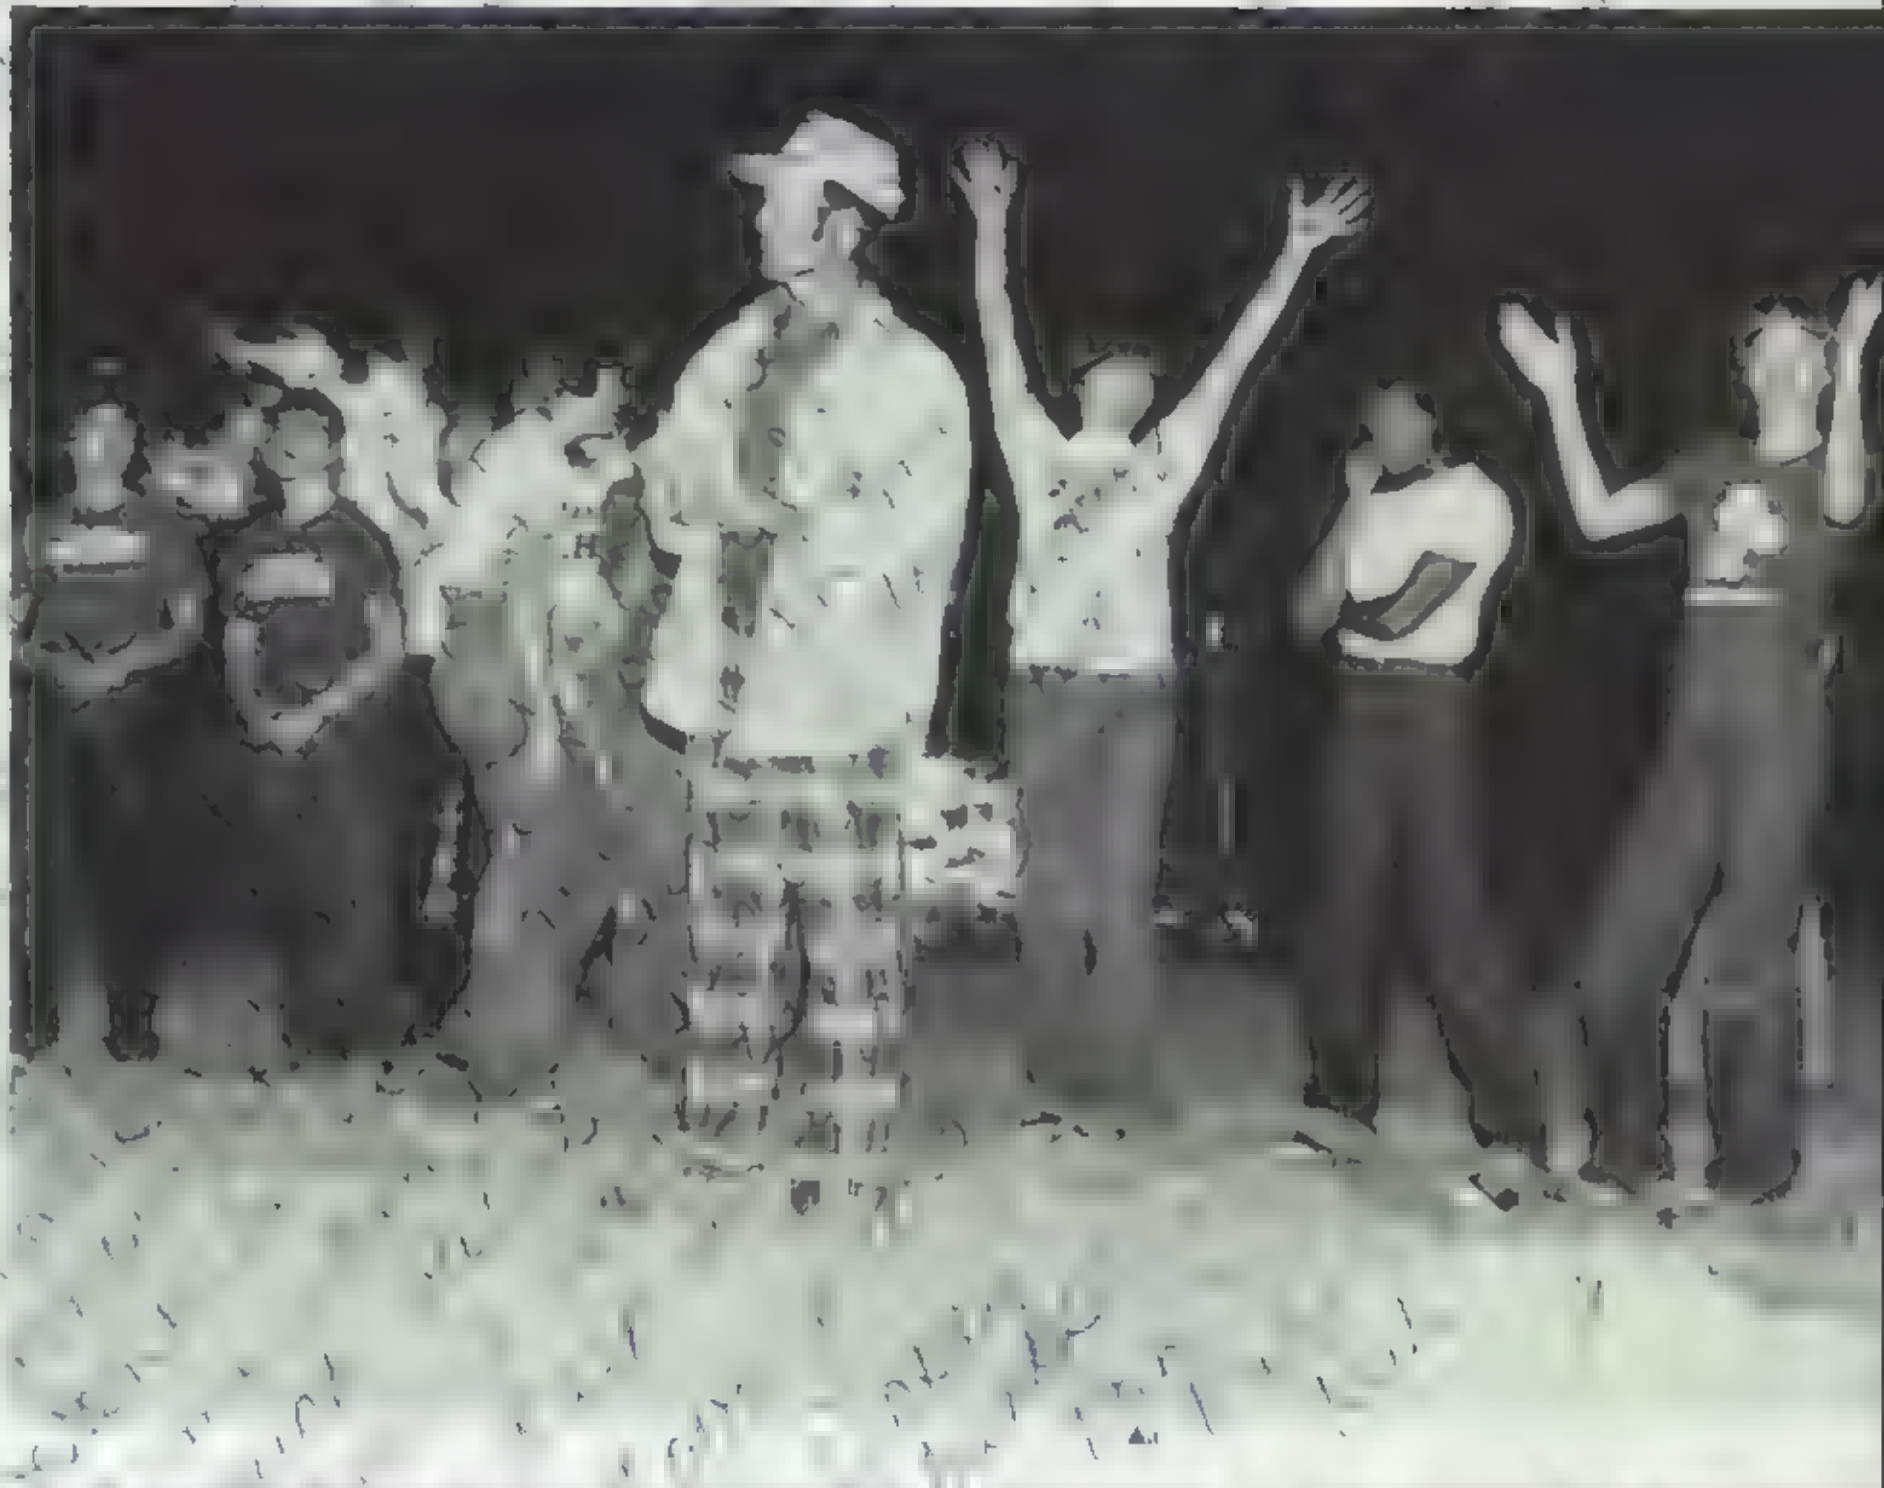

American History is something every one has to go through to complete high school. Every day it's the same thing you walk in and are mobbed by pink slip paper airplanes. Curt Clark plays his song for the day on his harmonica and Mr. Beam begins his lectures with a "Five Miles Through the Snow" story occasionally blowing a bubble. Then he either says to do all of the identity and questions 2, 3, 4 or he might show a film that only Susan Blanchat watches while everyone else sleeps. His tests are not hard but he does slip in tricky questions. The best part of class is the coke breaks 2 or 3 a week.

Yearbook is one of the best classes I've been in since my freshman year. It is mainly because of the teachers, and of course the hard working students that surround me. We all seem to work together as a team. When one of us is gone someone in the group usually does their work for them so they won't get behind. I ought to know because I'm usually the one gone. The teachers are a model for our work and our behavior with the exception of Mr. Roberts. Mr. Hottman acts normal mostly, but every once in a while he loses his temper. The main reason this class makes me feel good is because of Mr. Roberts. I've never felt more comfortable around anyone before, I guess it's because when I look at him I realize how fortunate I am.

Everyone must be in their chair playing scales by the time the tardy bell rings. If someone isn't playing by that time, they are last in line for that day. We warm up for fifteen minutes, then practice contest music. Mr. Hodges tells us to learn the notes and fingerings so we can start making music. He's always telling the freshman drummers to be quiet and make sure all the percussion parts are covered. The trombone players are always squirting water at someone, throwing things, taking drum sticks or taking back to Mr. Hodges under their breath. When twelve thirty finally rolls around we put up our instruments and go to lunch, one row at a time. Mr. Hodges reminds us not to cut in line or run down the hall as we leave the band room.

Nose paper is more useful than text books in this school. Kleenex has nuns singing about their softness and school children sing about the decorator boxes. Secretaries give up their tennis game to stay home with their puffs. Toilet paper is not exciting to us, we have a roll in each classroom and a roll in the hall for Mr. Ryman's picture of the galaxy. Friday Fun?

I almost miss the bus because I can't decide what to wear. When I decide I end up wearing clothes that make me hot all day.

The day starts with Mr. Harmon shouting, "Oh, what a beautiful day in Kakeland," and then reading the lunch menu. Since it's Friday, I feel kind of lazy and clean my purse instead of reading.

Second hour I give mouth to mouth to a dummy. I forgot to take the gum out of my mouth. Before I know it it goes shooting out onto the floor. Luckily I didn't choke. Recess! Annie.

Third hour flies by just fine, singing in Chaparral Singers. Lunch time. While scarfing down the luscious fish, Tammie gripes because she has yesterday's cake on her plate.

Lunch time is over and as usual Mr. Buck brings out the Friday Geometry Pop Test which should only take 15 minutes but takes the whole hour.

Fifth hour is a joy sitting in the library listening to Abbey make clever jokes, watching Eileen make goo goo eyes while Lana points out all the hunks in an Alabama yearbook.

The cafeteria is screaming during the Coke break. Mrs. Pui's won't take a free half of a can of Coke but does take a couple of Skittles. Mr. Roberts is in dream world number three.

And here I am in last hour writing and hoping this hour will go a little faster. It's a beautiful day outside and in a few minutes, it's the weekend!

Please Excuse the Interruption . . .

The office is the center of activity in the school. Everyone should be an office proctor at least once. It's not hard work, it's mostly just taking phone calls from people who leave messages. The first mistake I made was when the Superintendent called for Mr. Brown and I accidentally pushed the wrong button to hang up on the Superintendent.

Another fun thing is turning on the radio for a class. If you push the button up instead of down you turn on the intercom instead of the radio. The whole class gets to listen to everything you and the other proctors talk about. What is bad is when the girl you are talking about is in that classroom! Being an office proctor is also fun because you get to see who gets called to the office and why.

Chaparral Singers work hard all year. When the year starts we are already working on musical. After the musical it's right back to work on the Christmas concert. Then back to work on contest music which is a lot of work and a little yelling from Mr. B. at times. Even before contest is over we begin to work on Pop Concert music. Being in Chaparral Singers is a lot of work at times, but being in Chaparral Singers can be very special.

If you are in Chaparral Singers you are a part of a big family which is very close at times. You can feel the closeness especially when the group is holding hands and singing "The Old Irish Blessing." Chaparral Singers is a very special group under Mr. B., a family, with "The Old Irish Blessing" as a tie.

Wrestling Rah-Rahs

Being wrestling cheerleader when the school changes coaches can be confusing. You get to know the wrestlers coaches and even the managers. You are with them so much of the time and it's really a lot of fun. I wasn't sure if the new coach would like having the cheerleaders around. Everything turned out great with Mr. Rochholz. He's young enough to tease with, but he's old enough to respect as an experienced coach and teacher. We had fun this wrestling season. It was quite an experience, especially during state wrestling. Everyone got along great and I felt like we were part of the team.

The Toughest Opponent

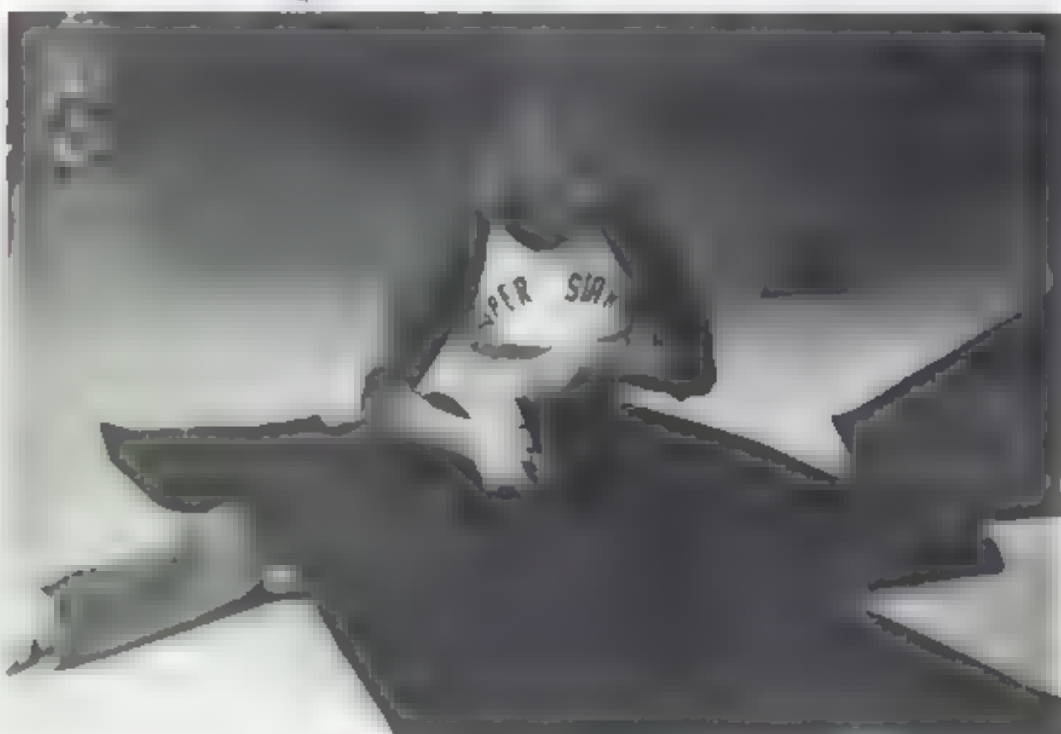

Getting beat out at state was terrible but getting beat for me was just horrid anyway. I went knowing what was needed, and I beat my first kid. I was really drawing in confidence. Then everyone came up to me and said that my next guy was good, and I would have to wrestle my very best. I psyched myself out. I went out on the mat and he beat me just what I thought would happen.

The next day I was ready to win 3rd place, and I won my first round. In my second round I knew that if I won this one, I would be facing someone that had beaten me 3 times already. I didn't feel like going on. The real reason I got beat out at state was I beat myself.

Better Luck Next Time

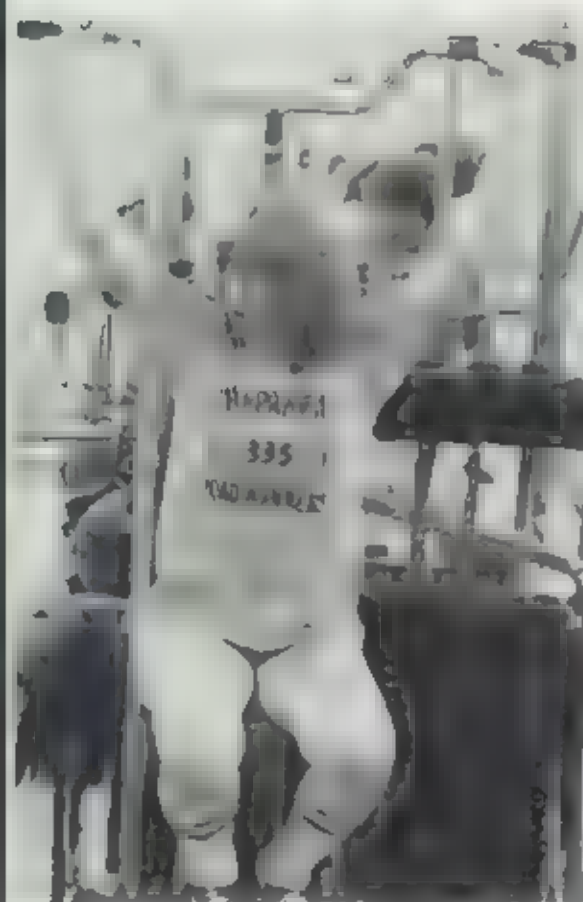

It's time for grade cards again. You have to figure out a good excuse for getting a C and a D when last nine weeks you made all B's. You have to worry if your parents are going to start making you stay home at nights, if they're going to let you see your boyfriend or girlfriend during the week, if they're going to ground you. Grades can really affect your life.

Grades can make you feel good sometimes, they can also bum you out. When you really work hard on a long paper or test and make a good grade, it can give you a boost of self-esteem, especially if you have a teacher that's a tough grader. Then comes the time when you feel you've done a good job on a test but you didn't. You make a rotten grade and the person next to you that didn't study, gets an A. That's when grades can really bum you out. Grades can get you grounded, give you self-esteem or really bum you out. Come to think of it, they're a lot like having a boyfriend.

A Cheerleader's View

The referee's whistle blows and the boys begin circling. Sometimes just hoping not to get pinned is what goes through their mind. I've seen it many times in the faces of wrestlers I have cheered for in the past three years. I saw the uncertainty of Johnny Helms in his first match as a freshman. As he went through his years of becoming an excellent wrestler, I have watched him conquer another hopeful wrestler. As he was successful, I felt successful he was the first wrestler I have ever cheered for going for first at state. It was a great experience that I won't forget.

Beginners luck

When I had driver's ed I drove with two freshmen who could barely see over the steering wheel, much less steer the car. It gets a little spooky when you are riding down the highway too fast and the driver can't see the road.

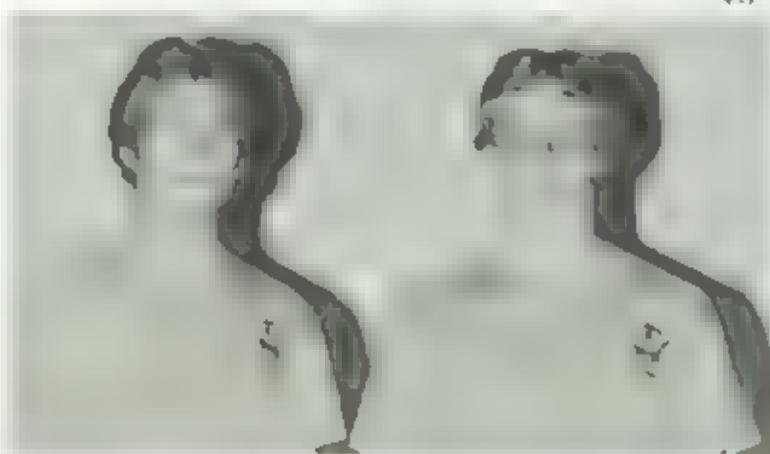

When we were practicing backing up, one of the girls hit a pole that was behind the car. The pole was short, but she knocked it over and got it stuck under the car. Mr. Elmore had to drive it off the pole.

The funniest thing that happened in driver's ed was when we started using the clutch and practicing whiplash injuries from the car jerking. The hardest thing about driver's ed is to keep from laughing at the person who is driving.

Pssst . . . did ya hear?

It's awful to come back to school on Monday, but there is one good thing about it. weekend gossip. Everyone reveals who they caught parking and what parties everyone went to and who had dates with whom. Lots of people come back with hickies and it's always fun to find out who gave them. You might also hear which girl is going out on her steady. By Wednesday all the gossip is old and everyone is ready for a weekend

In the beginning

Freshmen always have the honor of starting off high school math with Mr. Adams. He's a tough man with a fantastic mind. He frequently talks about things some of us will never ever hear about.

He's always lecturing on great men in mathematics, and he knows a lot about them. He also lectures on the importance of mathematics. "Everyone who's anyone needs it." His favorite example is computer workers. He believes this is the occupation in everyone's future.

He must have a great desire to teach because he does it so well. He must really believe in kids.

Mr. Adams lectures his class on mathematics.

The End

Last Friday I ended my career in basketball at Chaparral. We had a pretty good season. We were only the second team to tie or win the league title in Chaparral history. The biggest disappointment in our season was the semifinals of the sub-state tournament. We beat Andover in the first round and were up against a tough team, Rose Hill. They were ranked 4th in the state and came to the tournament with an undefeated record. We knew that we had a chance to win if things would go our way.

I could tell in the first few minutes of the game that it was going to be a long night. The first quarter was all fouls on us of course, and the second quarter we couldn't make any baskets. At the end of the first half I could tell that this was my last game.

At first I didn't really feel bad about losing because I was so happy there wouldn't be any more practice. After the game I started feeling sad because I realized that I had lost more than practices. I lost a lot of good times with my friends. Six years of playing with these guys and all of a sudden it's over.

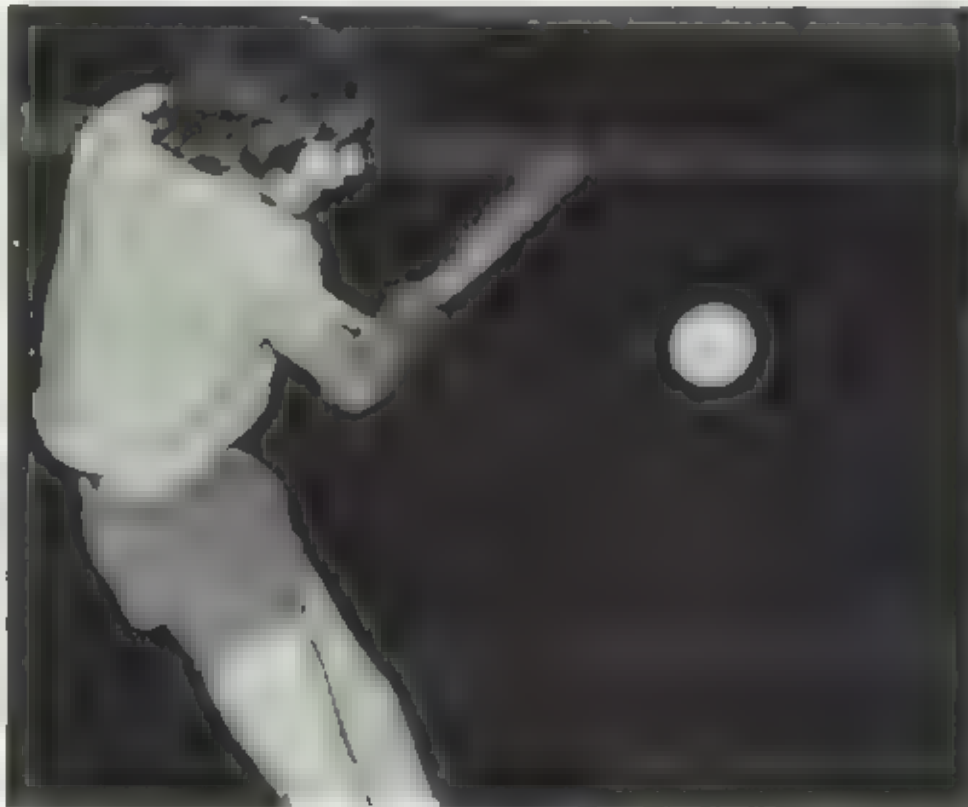

At the end of the season, the basketball team listens as coach Boone gives the team a pep talk. The team is excited and ready for the next day's game.

Carol Mitchell and Sonya Perry celebrate on their senior day.

Roger McKnight soaks Domingo Bontu in making the junior cut. It's a fun time as well as a hard one.

THE CLAN

The coaches Clan. Beam, Schierling, Rochholz, Buck, Shurley, and Elmore. They stand in front of the library every morning to rate girls, spread rumors and catch up on gossip. Beam blows a bubble and sees a new love fling to tease some junior about. Adams scratches his chin and sees a freshman that might make a good football player after all. Buck gets one of his daily cartoons from his Geometry Class. Elmore chews his fingernails in nervousness as he remembers who will be driving him to Wichita that day, and Rochholz finds a Wrestling Rah Rah to flirt with for a while. Shurley keeps walking into his room to make sure no one is trying to steal the Government Test, and Mr. Schierling looks over his girls who, because there is a game tonight, are in dresses.

Stir-n-Stitch

Home Ec. is everything from sewing to cooking. Mrs. Fisher expects everyone to make wonderful creations in a couple of weeks and even though one sleeve on your sleeveless blouse comes to the bottom of the elbow, she expects you to wear it to school the next day. All day people say to you, "Oh, I see you finished your assignment in Home Ec."

The cooking is fun. After creating beautiful brownies and taking some down to the teachers lounge, you sit down to enjoy one. Two tablespoons of salt instead of teaspoons! You frantically run to get back the ones at the teachers lounge only to find the teachers rushing to the drinking fountains!

Advantages

It's great when your best friend proctors the same hour as you do. You can meet in an empty room and gossip about everyone and everything. You watch the people skipping class and Bob chasing girls and staring at the classes. Since I proctor for Mr. Adams, I have access to the computer. I have achieved the highest score (439) so far, in the Brick Out game. The average is in the 100's. But I also type tests, file papers and do all the little jobs the teachers don't like to do.

It's been . . . a pleasure

'You've got to take it! If you are going to go to college you've just got to take it.' That's what you hear every year till you get out of Comp I, and by then you feel obligated to take Comp II. It's really not all that bad until you get behind in your journals or until you want to tell Mr. Roberts where to put the stupid paper you stayed up all night to finish.

The next day he hands it back and you think, "Ah, here comes the A. Oh, it can't be a C. I don't believe it."

Then you find out the whole class got one, so it's not all that bad. What do you do? Try to get in your journals, try to not talk in class, just write, write and still write!

This Is It

It's one of our last times to be together. Everyone gathers around the fire, and the conversation starts going strong. Everyone is talking of the good times we, the class of '81, have had. One guy trips over a dirt clod, on his way back to the keg. The cops arrive, as everyone knew they would before the night was over. Our senior party comes to an end as the last burning coal is put out, and the journey goes on.

Student Survey A Student View of the World

Many news stories happened that stick in the minds of C.H.S. students. We saw great things happen such as the space shuttle performing perfectly on it's first space outing, the hostages finally released after 444 days of captivity, Ronald Reagans defeat of incumbent President Jimmy Carter and the grain embargo lifted.

There were also "not so great things" happening. John Lennon was shot and killed in New York. President Reagan wounded by an assassins bullet in Washington D.C. and Pope John Paul II in Rome.

For the fourth year, the Paisano staff asked students what else was important to them in 1980-81? Their responses provided insights into the personalities, fad and favorites of this school year.

Becky, it's been really nice to get to know you. You were really nice to me since I came to Chaparral. You are really a fun person to be around when you are around. There is never a dull moment! I wish you & Mike the best when you get married. You deserve it. I hope to still see you after we graduate. Keep in touch. Your friend
